2019

Our 3rd year of service to the greater Crozet community

Last weekend's Crozet Arts & Crafts Festival suffered a rainy two days which for the most part did not deter many from visiting the annual show and sale. The muddy knolls of grass turned to mud attest to the fact.

Early detection to forestall glaucoma's ravages sought

By Fariss Samarrai, fariss@virginia.edu

Glaucoma is the leading cause of blindness in the U.S. and worldwide. More than 3 million Americans suffer from the eye disease. If caught and treated early, its progression can be significantly slowed, but the disease often goes undiagnosed until after noticeable vision loss has occurred – and that damage to vision is irreversible.

Glaucoma is often caused when abnormally high pressure inside the eye puts damaging pressure on the optic nerve. The optic nerve, which connects the eye with the brain, is made up of neuron cells, specifically retinal ganglion cells. Pressure causes retinal ganglion cells to die, never to be recovered. Vision loss sometimes begins around the periphery of the visual field and gradually moves toward the center, the line of sight. The disease may be inherited, but also may occur for reasons not yet understood.

Xiaorong Liu, a University of Virginia neuroscientist with appointments in the biology and psychology departments, is seeking to understand the processes that lead to retinal cell death.

“If we can understand exactly how and when cells die in the diseased condition, we can seek very early interventions that could stop cell loss early,” Liu said.

Liu is studying retinal cell development under normal conditions and also under diseased conditions. She is seeking the subtlest changes that indicate the beginnings of cell death. Ideally, intervention would occur at this earliest stage, the point where healthy cells start converting over to a diseased state.

“Retinal cells don’t die at the same rate,” she said. “We want to detect small changes before deaths, and the early deaths of cells that proceed greater cell death that eventually results in blindness. Perhaps then we could seek ways to provide protection to cells before they die.”

Glaucoma is treated most commonly with different types of eyedrops that reduce pressure in the eye. This does not reverse damage that has already occurred, but it can slow the death of retinal cells as the optic nerve is relieved of excessive pressure.

The disease, in some forms, also can be mitigated with eye surgery and systemic medications. But none of these methods are cures; they simply control the disease by slowing the loss of cells, and thereby slowing the gradual loss of vision.

Liu has developed laboratory methods and technologies that allow her to tease out the details as cells enter a diseased state when pressure builds in the eye. She is testing a hypothesis, that molecular changes occur to axons – a part of ganglion cells that form the optic nerve, responsible for transmitting visual signals from the retina to the brain – prior to the deaths of these cells.

“We are tracking these changes as they happen, in vivo, in mice, so we can identify a biomarker for cell degeneration,” Liu said. “If we can establish a bellwether for early detection, a point where morphological changes are occurring prior to cell death, then we can test for it, and it may have clinical applicability. If we can know in advance, very early when disease is beginning to develop, we can intervene and stop the cells from dying. The long-term goal is to save people’s vision.”

Liu, a 2002 Ph.D. graduate of UVA, came back to the University in the fall of 2017 from a faculty position at Northwestern University. A member of the UVA Brain Institute, her research is supported by several grants from the National Institutes of Health/National Eye Institute.

Dual Primary Election set

A dual Primary Election will be held on Tuesday, June 11, 2019. All county voting precincts will be open for this election.

The Republican party primary election will be to nominate the Republican candidate for Virginia State Senate, 17th District and will be confined to voters in that Senate District, which includes voting precincts in northeastern Albemarle County.

The Democratic Party primary election will be to nominate the Democratic candidates for Virginia state Senate 17th District, Virginia state House of Delegates 57th District, Albemarle County Sheriff, and Albemarle County Board of Supervisors-Rivanna Magisterial District.

Albemarle County voters who are registered in the 17th State Senate District cannot vote both party ballots. Voters will have to advise the election officers in their voting precinct as to whether they wish to vote the Democratic ballot or the Republican ballot. (See Va. Code § 24.2-530.)

To view the Albemarle County ballots for the June 11 primary election, go to the Voter Registration homepage and click “Current Ballot.” To view the ballot style for your precinct and district, click on “Polling Places”, and then select your precinct.

Voters may check their current voting locations by calling the Albemarle County Voter Registration Department at 434-972-4173, or visiting the Virginia Department of Elections website: vote.virginia.gov.

The Deadline to register to vote for the June 11 primary election is Monday, May 20, 2019. Voters are strongly encouraged to inquire before the registration deadline if they wish to check their voter registration status.

Mark your calendars. the 2019 Crozet Independence Day Fireman's Parade, Celebration, and Fireworks is scheduled for Saturday, June 29, at Claudius Crozet Park.

Our Snapshots

A picture can be worth a thousand words

The Crozet Car Show Committee met last week to discuss final details for the fundraising event to support Crozet Park on June 8. Steve Sellers (l) chaired the meeting with (l to r) Lyle Camblos, Bob Garland, George Davies and Sam Harris. Member Jim Crosby took the picture.

Despite the rainy weekend, the attendance was good for the Crozet Arts & Crafts Festival last week refilling the park's funding and leaving scars that will soon heal.

Finding the exit lane from Crozet Park was not difficult as the mud trail clearly marked the path.

Email: Jim, many thanks for today's very interesting issue. I have forwarded it to several Crozet coffee group friends. In part, here's what I told them: "Two fascinating articles you may be interested in reading. One pertains to George Welsh and the other to UVA's use of solar energy. Last month, I attended a real estate class in Middlesex County and passed the Puller Solar Facility on the way toward Deltaville. I did not know about it and UVA's ownership, but, as I passed it, I was in awe at its size and scope. Now, thanks to Jim Crosby's Crozettoday, I now know who owns this gigantic facility. To me, I think it is a great use of available land in a rural county area that can also capitalize on this green technology. Best regards, Bill Spicuzza

EMAIL: Jim, I'm a UVA grad and I love the front page photo on today's edition of Crozet Today of the buildings and grounds. I would love to acquire a copy if it's available for purchase. Could you please put me in touch with the photographer if that's the route I need to take? Many thanks.

Alan Gault Dillard Jr.

Alan Gault Dillard Jr., 80, passed away peacefully on Thursday, May 9, 2019, with family by his side in Charlottesville, Virginia. Alan is survived by his wife Daphne "Penny" Dillard; children, Sharon Mast and husband, Rick, Sandy van der Vaart and husband, Don, and Alan Gault Dillard III "Trey" and wife, Angela; brother, Mitch Dillard; as well as eleven grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Alan was preceded in death by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Gault Dillard and daughter, Sue Beckner. Alan was born on March 29, 1939, in Richmond, Virginia, to Mr. and Mrs. Alan Gault Dillard.

He attended Fluvanna High School and then enlisted in the United States Air Force where he served for seven years as an aircraft mechanic. He married his high school sweetheart, Penny, and moved to San Antonio, Texas. The couple welcomed daughters, Sharon, Sandy and Sue into their family and then returned to Virginia in 1964 where Alan worked as a Charlottesville City police officer.

In 1970, Alan and Penny welcomed son, Trey, into their family. While working as a police officer, Alan developed a business paving driveways which eventually led to the founding of A.G. Dillard Jr. Paving, Inc. in 1966. Over the next two decades, the business grew under Alan's leadership to include grading, utilities and concrete services and ultimately led to him changing the company's name to A.G. Dillard Inc. to better reflect its expansion. The reputation that he built for quality, timely completion and value are the foundations that the success and continued growth of A.G. Dillard Inc. were built on.

Along with his career and work ethic, he had a passion for auto racing that started all the way back in Texas. He built and raced his own cars with much success in Texas and continued upon his return to Virginia. He gave up driving in the mid-1970s and took a break from motorsports before returning in the mid-1980s as a NASCAR team owner. He enjoyed success at the highest levels of stock car racing before retiring fully from the sport in the mid-1990s. He also enjoyed boating, working around his farm and watching University of Virginia sports.

The family will receive visitors at Covenant Church, 1025 Rio Road E. on Wednesday, May 15, 2019, from 6 to 8 p.m. A funeral is scheduled for Thursday, May 16, 2019, at Covenant Church at 1 p.m., with a graveside service to follow at Monticello Memory Gardens. Pete Hartwig will officiate the ceremony. All are welcome to attend and celebrate Alan's life.

In lieu of flowers, please send donations to Hospice of the Piedmont, 675 Peter Jefferson Pkwy., Suite 300, Charlottesville, VA 22911, www.hopva.org; or City Church, 1010 Rio Road E, Charlottesville, VA 22901. The family would like to thank Melanie Jones and Thelma Wingfield for their care and dedication.
